Art in the Capitol

Student art in the halls of the Capitol has been a highlight for our governors, legislators, Alaskans and tourists since 1988. Art in the Capitol displays quality artwork by Alaskan elementary, middle and high school students from across the state using varied techniques representing their diverse experiences.

This is your opportunity to reserve a gallery panel (multiple pieces of flat artwork to be displayed on a solid, non-porous 4' x 4' white background) or the display cabinet for three dimensional pieces (two sides three glass shelves per side, approximately 6" x 4' per shelf) for a month during the fall (September-December), one of the legislative session months (January-April), or for four months during the summer tourist season (May-August). Flat artwork should be made as lightweight as possible as it will be mounted from the back using tape.

Student art will be displayed on a reserved-space basis. Now is the time to sign up. Initially, responders will be allocated one or two panels or the display case. If there is space available, we will be happy to accommodate you for more panels. If a school submits artwork without reserving space, we will make every attempt to display it if and when there is space. To be assured of a panel, please sign up as soon as possible.

Legislative Affairs Information & Teleconferencing section maintains the calendar, displays the pieces, provides a certificate of recognition acknowledging that the artwork was displayed in the Capitol, and returns the artwork. The artwork is displayed on our website at <http://w3.legis.state.ak.us/students/students.php>.

We are anticipating yet another year filled with innovative artwork from Alaskan schools. Thanks for your interest in the Art in the Capitol project!
